How the Catskill Mountains Season Is Being Celebrated. Nature's Marvels and Beauties on and About These Scenic Peaks. Rip Van Winkle's
House. A Great Feast of Engineering.

[SPECIAL TO THE TOWNSMAN]

CATSKILL MOUNTAIN HOUSE, SEPT.

From the table-like ledge which juts out just in front of the old Mountain House, one can sit and look over a view comprising portions of four states. The thickly wooded side of South Mountain drops almost perpendicularly over two thousand feet from under this ledge, so the effect is much the same as that of looking over the extensive panoramas from the car of a balloon. The forest below is dense, the luxuriant green being only broken here and there by the gray skeleton of a once stately pine,—giants of the woods which have lived out their natural life and now stand like so many sentinels of time, gaunt and bleached by many seasons' suns and storms. From the base of the Mountain a panorama of extraordinary picturesque beauty stretches away as far as the eye can reach. It is like an enormous patchwork quilt containing squares and triangles of grain fields, irregular patches of woodlands, and strips of meadowlands, and dotted here and there by a tiny town or hamlet. Away over to the eastward the Hudson winds like a silvery ribbon, here and there specked by an island. Sixty miles of the noble River can be seen. Beyond the River the fields grow smaller and smaller till distance obliterates tangible form and veils them in hazy blue. The far eastern horizon is outlined by the dim lines of mountains as far as it is visible. The Green Mountains are, on the north, the Berkshires overruled by tall Mount Everett are on the east, and the rolling hills of Connecticut terminate the line to the southward.

Sitting on the broad veranda of the hotel, with this glorious expanse of country greeting the vision and the wind rustling in the trees back of the house, the spirit of the place which most impresses one, is that of rare peacefulness. Indeed none of the other popular resorts frequented by New Yorkers offer such desirable opportunities for solid rest and recuperation as does this portion of the Catskills. The season at Newport or Saratoga is one giddy whirl of social functions; Lenox is ponderously exclusive and prim, and more or less formality is creeping into the Adirondack and Lake George resorts. But here in the Catskills all traces of the city's whirl are left behind and it requires a distinct effort to even think of business perplexities or noisy streets when confronted by these wonders of Nature.

Although the season is drawing to a close and people are beginning to get back to town, the mountain paths are by no means yet deserted and there are still a goodly number of guests at this old hostelry, which, for nearly seventy years, has furnished comfortable accommodation to city folk. The men and younger women have generally adopted the easy golf suits which are, by the way, ideally fitted for mountain climbing and tramping. It is conventional in the Catskills to do the unconventional, and frequently the sweater and the golf suit invade the dining-room or the parlor. Walking, fishing and driving are the favorite forms of recreation up here. The woods ring with the voices of merry parties equipped with Alpine stocks or rough staves cut from the younger trees. A delightful feature of this season has been the evening concerts on the broad veranda of the Hotel Kaaterskill, two miles south of here. It has been a favorite diversion, especially on moonlight nights, to walk over to these concerts following the path which leads along the edge of the mountain and which discloses at every few steps glimpses of the great view which has made this particular path a favorite with lovers of scenic grandeur. The path winds up and down and in and out among some curious natural formations. There is Pudding-stone Hall, a narrow passage between the ledge and an enormous block of pudding-stone; a projecting ledge presenting a good likeness to the face of the Sphinx; the Fairy Spring, a beautiful grotto of moss-covered rock, and the Elfin Pass, a deep but narrow fissure in the main ledge. Another favorite evening diversion is boating on the two beautiful lakes which are just back of the Mountain House on top of the mountain, their elevation being 2,138 feet. South Lake, the larger, has an area of thirty-five acres, and North Lake covers some twenty-five acres. The forest comes down to the waters of both and is reflected in their mirror-like surfaces. Boats may be procured at the little rustic boat house and to drift lazily along under the shadow of the shore on a night when the moon has looked over the mountain and alivered the waters, is a pleasure which can be most keenly appreciated by the city man who is far away from the cares and strains of the business world.

This region of the Catskills is prolific in beautiful scenery. A mile or so from the Lakes are the Kaaterskill Falls, the grandest in the whole Catskill Range. From the top of a rocky precipice the water dashes out into the air and falls one hundred and sixty feet to a rocky table, then dashes on, and as if not content with its first leap, plunges eighty feet more in the second fall. Nature has carved out the rocks behind the falls into a great amphitheatre, so that one may pass along the fern-covered rocks entirely behind the rushing water. Many artists have reproduced these falls on canvas and Bryant has sung their praises in a poem the first verse of which says:

"Midst greens and shades the Kaaterskill leaps,
From cliffs where the wood-sower clings;
All summer he moistens his verdant steps,
With the sweet light spray of the mountain springs;
And he shakes the woods on the mountain side,
When they drip with the rains of Autumn tide."

A few miles walk to the south from the Mountain House brings one to the deep ravine or gorge which the old Dutch settlers named Kaaterskill Clove. Nearly every mile of this romantic gorge is endowed with legendary interest. A short way up the Clove is the time-stained old house in which Rip Van Winkle is said to have lived, and down against the base of the mountain nestles the little town into whose sleepy street Rip wandered after his long slumber. Outside the old house hangs an antique picture of old Rip the age of which cannot be accounted for by the oldest inhabitant. A short way from the house is the historic rock upon which Van Winkle slept those twenty years.

Originally all who came up the mountain were obliged to either walk or ride up (and then walk up the steep grades) in the lumbering old mountain stages. A few years ago, however, an inclined railway was constructed from the valley below to the crest of the mountain within a stone's throw of the Mountain House. In its length, elevation, and carrying capacity this road exceeds any other inclined railway in the world. The cars are hoisted by steel cables operated by powerful engines at the summit. The cars are coupled to a loop, one car always descending at exactly the same rate of speed as another ascends. The railway is seven thousand feet long and ascends 1600 feet in this distance, the trip occupying ten minutes. A trip either up or down the line affords a magnificent view. The passengers sit with their backs to the mountain side, and as the car ascends the entire panorama of the Hudson River Valley and the Berkshire Hills is brought into view.

She Wears Her Cross.

The up to date woman wears her cross if she is so fortunate as to possess one. As an article of jewelry this symbol of suffering is as popular as it was in the days of the grandmothers. When the grandmothers were girls, the possession of a handsome bejeweled cross that could be worn as a pin, a hair ornament or a locket amounted almost to a badge of aristocracy. The black ones, studded with diamonds or pearls, or both, were highest in favor, as they are today. The fashionable cross must be antique looking. Not everybody's grandmother possessed one, however, so the jewelers have come to the rescue of the woman who did not fall heir to one and are bringing out exquisite designs in Roman gold. Most of them are studded with precious stones, and many have backgrounds of black enamel. It is by no means a taking form of personal adornment, but the women like it.—New York Sun.

"I have never had a day's sickness in my life," said a middle aged man the other day.

"What a comfort it would be," sighs some poor invalid, "to be in his place for a year or two." Yet half of the invalids we see might be just as healthy as he, if they would only take proper care of themselves, eat proper food—and digest it.

It's so strange that such simple things are overlooked by those who want health.

Food makes health. It makes strength—and strength wards off sickness. The man who had never been sick was strong because he always digested his food, and you could become the same by helping your stomach to work as well as his. Shaker Digestive Cordial will help your stomach and will make you strong and healthy by making the food you eat make you fat. Druggists sell it. Trial bottle 10 cents.

IT WAS A REAL FIGHT

A PIECE OF STAGE REALISM THE GALLERY DIDN'T APPRECIATE.

The Hero Had Some Difficulty in Carrying Out the Intentions of the Author. How Two Actors Settled a Disagreement and Lost Their Jobs.

Every day one sees things which force him to believe that Barrow said it all when he declared that "the American people like to be humbugged." They will applaud the bogus, the make believe, and allow the genuine—or, to use a worse bit of slang, "the real thing"—to go off the scene without so much as "a hand."

Fine fronties in the dramatic business are a waste of energy, so I am told by a couple of actors, and here is the story, a tale of how two ambitious ones gave to the exasperating public perhaps the greatest bit of stage realism ever presented and received for their pains—and bruises—an awful silence and a few pointed remarks from the gallery critics. I forgot what the play was, and who the actors were, but the other "Ha, ha; I'll steal the girl." They had played in several pieces together and were friends. One was a believer in real tears and all that goes to constitute a living part, while the other believed that at no time should the actor allow the lines or situations of the piece to make him forget himself.

In the piece which they were playing the hero and the villain meet at a critical moment and fight. In one the hero failed to settle his opponent—well, he got his salary for doing it, so it had to occur.

The fight was rehearsed and was made to look real to a startling degree. The gallery used to go wild and the whole house resounded with the applause, but this did not suit the villain, who believed in realism. It was his belief that a real fight would make a hit. I believe I mentioned the fact that they were friends. That was true. They were up to the moment where one, in a moment of indiscretion, attempted to criticize the other. Of course everybody knows that when that occurs all friendship ceases—between actors. Of course there were coarse remarks passed, and the one who believed in realism and being an actor off and on finally folded his arms and said, "When and where?"

"Right here, if you like. It's a short job anywhere."

"You think so, eh? Well, it shall occur in our fight scene tonight. For once the public shall see what they pay for. The plot of the play necessitates that you vanquish me. We shall see whether it is so short a job."

The worst of the quarrel was that they were both athletes, good wrestlers and boxers and willing.

The play dragged slowly that night until the fight scene.

The hero's line, "It is either you or I, Reginald Marshallton," was answered by—in an undertone—"You bet it is, and I'll mark you so you won't play for a month."

Instead of going to a clinch, as usual, they both sparred about for an opening. They were too long in finding it, and from the gallery a critic shouted: "What's the matter with you two? Why don't you get together?"

Then they both led and landed with a wallop. Then they clinched. The villain back heeled the hero, and down they went.

"Fight like a man, not like a dog," whispered the hero in hoarse tones.

The villain allowed him to get on his feet, and they began to spar again. About the time the gallery got restless the hero landed a right on the villain's eye that sent him reeling. Had he reeled the other way all would have been well, as the hero would have gone on with the piece, but as the hero crossed the stage toward him the realist rushed and knocked him down with a swinging left.

Now, by all the laws of melodrama the villain at no time should get the better of the hero in a personal encounter. The gallery knew that and roundly hissed the hero for so far forgetting himself. The stage manager knew it and ran to one of the wings to prompt him. The hero knew it, and he went back at the villain for keeps.

They fought for five minutes all over the stage. They knocked down paper mache trees, a stoop to a house and a fence, besides each other. The whole company stood in the wings watching the mill, and the manager cursed and made awful threats in a stage whisper, but somehow the audience was not impressed. The gallery yelled: "Yer fakir. Why don't ye fight?" The balcony, from which on previous nights waves of approval had broken, sat quiet, bored and sullen. The parquet, always willing to follow the lead from above on previous occasions, now sat glum, waiting until the very bad imitation of a fight should end.

The hero fought desperately. He must win. The plot of the piece worked out from his victory, but the villain clinched and fought as he had never dreamed of fighting. In spite of warnings from the wings he refused to be knocked senseless and allow the hero to go on and rescue the girl.

At last the stage manager threatened them with the curtain, and the hero with one mighty effort freed himself from the grasp of the realist and, rushing toward the house in which the heroine was supposed to be, cried with a hoarse accent: "Beware of me, Reginald Marshallton! My just purpose shall not be thwarted."

As he had one eye closed and his mouth swollen out of heroic proportions the sentence did not cause the gallery to make any particular fuss. The heroine refused to allow him to kiss her in the rescue scene, and the manager discharged them both.—Chicago Times-Herald.

DIDN'T CARE ABOUT STYLE.

But Nevertheless He Wouldn't Go Down Town Without a Necktie.

"Georgiana," said Mr. Dalrymple, "it seems to me that you spend altogether too much time worrying about what other folks are likely to think about you. Why don't you follow my example and have a little independence? As long as I know that I am doing my duty as a man what do I care how others like my style?"

"I don't know," Mrs. Dalrymple replied, "what you mean. In what way have I been worrying about what other folks think of me?"

"Oh, in a hundred ways," her husband answered. "You wouldn't wear the waist you have on if it were not for the fact that all the other women wear them and would think you couldn't afford it if you didn't have one. You wouldn't care whether you had lace curtains at the windows if other folks didn't have them. You wouldn't spend money for a hundred and one other things that you could get along without just as well as not if you were not always trying to pose before other people."

"Well," Mrs. Dalrymple assented, for she was not disposed to quarrel over the matter, "it is perhaps as you say. I am sorry that it is so, but I can't help it. Aren't you afraid you'll be late at the office this morning? And you haven't put on your necktie this morning. How did you come to forget it?"

"By George!" he exclaimed, looking at his watch, "it's nearly 8 o'clock now. I don't know how I happened to forget my necktie. Where is it? I must hurry."

"Oh, never mind the tie this morning," his wife said. "You've got a clean shirt and collar on. Go without the tie."

"What!" shouted William Dalrymple. "Go down town without a necktie! You must think I'm crazy. Why, the boys in the office would say the life out of me, and people would think I didn't have money enough to buy one. Here it is. Goodbye."

Then Mrs. Dalrymple sat down and thought, and two little wrinkles with merry curves appeared at the corners of her mouth.—Cleveland Leader.

UNUSUAL LEGAL DECISION.

But It Was Emphatically Indorsed by the Spectators.

"I heard the late Judge John R. Grace of the court of appeals of Kentucky set aside the verdict of a jury once under circumstances that to my mind did him infinite credit," said Representative John S. Rhea of that state to a Washington Post representative.

"It seems that a poor woman, who was on the verge of starvation and who was the sole support of four little children, went into a neighbor's smoke-house and purloined a piece of bacon. The proof was positive, and the jury reluctantly returned a verdict of guilty. When the finding of the jury was read, Judge Grace, who at that time presided over the Fourteenth judicial district, rising to his feet, said in the most emphatic tones:

"The court orders that the verdict in this case be set aside, and I want to declare here that in all cases where an unfortunate woman is on trial for stealing food, taken to keep her offspring from starving, it will require 12 men to convict her of the crime in this court. The defendant is discharged from custody."

"The announcement was greeted with applause from the spectators, and the general sentiment was that Judge Grace had acted not only as a befitted a chivalrous man, but that his ruling was right. Theft to keep innocent babes from perishing of hunger can scarcely be called a crime."

Editorial Clinders.

The smile with which the Main Street driver looks upon the rebuilding of the Main Street roadway, will soon be overshadowed by that of the Main Street pedestrian, for we learn this morning that Supt. Chandler is to concretize the west sidewalk from the Taylor residence to town.

The old walk has long been disagreeable and lumpy, and its rebuilding will be one of the most popular and most needed pieces of work the highway department could perform.

There is one excellent County official who is likely to be undisturbed this year, and that is County Treasurer Jenkins. Mr. Jenkins is a model official and a treasurer whose administration has been able and economical. The public service does not secure too many men of his stamp and his retention term after term shows that there is a goodly share of common sense among Essex County voters after all.

The breaking of the dam at Clinton, by the unexpected rush of water let in under the direction of one of the civil engineers in the employ of the state, will probably cost the state a pretty penny. Like many another self-opinionated man he refused to heed the warnings of those who apparently knew the natural conditions better than he did, and a disastrous result followed.

The "Indian Ridge lawn party" is now demanding the energies of the half dozen excellent ladies whose interest has never flagged in behalf of the preservation of Indian Ridge. May their already splendid success be added to.

One more week and the youth of the land begin to invade Andover. The old town has on her richest attire in which to welcome the new addition to her population.

Everything indicates that Andover has a pretty snappy ball team in the Social club aggregation.

The School Committee are very desirous of abating the nuisance occasioned by the low bog in the northwest corner of the Punchard grounds. This does not mean tin cans and old glass and crockery.

It's New Hampshire's most Famous.

Centre Harbor is a very popular summer resort, and well it might be, for a more beautiful spot is not to be found in New Hampshire than the abiding place on the shores of Lake Winnepesaukee. The Lake is many feet above the sea level, and on every side towers the peaks of the famous White Mountains. No less than three hundred islands of varying sizes are scattered over its area, which are in themselves, charming excursion points. Various boats ply to and fro between the landing but the trip over all others is on the steamer Mt. Washington. This craft is of sufficient size to accommodate fully a thousand passengers, and its tour of the lake covers not less than sixty miles, stopping at all of the larger points though only after ploughing its way in and about among its islands and cooves. The Boston & Maine Railroad has arranged for an excursion to Centre Harbor from this station for September 10th, the rate for the round trip being only $2.00. These tickets are good on regular trains and information regarding train connections can be obtained at Railroad Stations.

Marvellous low prices held the fort at our store, but we cannot guarantee these prices for any length of time. Safest to buy now and profit thereby. BASEBALL.

Salem Centre, 11; Andover 8.

The Andover Social club nine, which has been playing winning ball this season, met defeat Saturday at the hands of the strong Salem Centre, N. H. team.

The contest was expected to be a close one, but it was predicted that the Andover nine would be able to down the New Hampshire boys, the local battery being counted upon to pull out a victory against great odds. It was a stubborn fight and the game went to New Hampshire by a score of 11 to 8.

The Salem boys clinched the game in the first inning by scoring three runs and shutting Andover out. They added two more in the third before the home team had sent a man across the plate. Andover then took a brace and scored four runs in the next three innings, without allowing their opponents to add a single run. The Salem boys were too fast, however, and they added six more to their score in the seventh and eighth innings, against four for Andover. The home team made a strong bid for the game in the ninth but failed to score more than three runs.

Maalin hit the ball safely five times and once for two bases. Fairbanks and Marble also batted well for Salem. For the Social club Saunders, Little, and Stewart led in batting. The last named made a pretty double play unassisted.

Obituary.

JOHN C. HOVEY.

John C. Hovey, who had been critically ill at his home on Bartlett street for some time, died Monday morning about 3 o'clock. Mr. Hovey had been twice injured in accidents, and a fall which he sustained last spring, is believed to have produced injuries which culminated fatally.

A few years ago, Mr. Hovey was thrown from his carriage by a runaway horse and so badly cut in the head that his life was despaired of by physicians. The wound was dressed and the injured man slowly recovered after much suffering. His head had troubled him ever since.

Mr. Hovey was 61 years of age. He was born in Andover and spent practically all his life in town. By occupation he was a farmer. In 1862 he enlisted from Andover in the First Massachusetts Heavy Artillery and served as a private the remainder of the war. He was one of the oldest members of Bartlett Post 99, G. A. R. He is survived by a wife and one son.

Funeral services in charge of Rev. Frank H. Shipman, were conducted at the Old South Church, Wednesday afternoon. At the grave in the Spring Grove Cemetery, special services were held by Bartlett Post 99 G. A. R. The bearers were all Grand Army men, Peter D. Smith, George W. Chandler, Brainerd Cummings, George Graffam, Warren Mearns and Ballard Holt. There was a profusion of beautiful floral tributes, including a wreath from the members of Bartlett Post. The services at the church and grave were attended by a large number of Grand Army comrades, members of the Woman's Relief Corps. Sons of Veterans and citizens, who had gathered to pay their last tribute to a departed friend.

G. E. Goodwin's Elbow Broken.

G. E. Goodwin, employed by George Harnden of the Holt district, was seriously injured in an accident on Salem street late Saturday night. He was driving at a rapid rate when his horse stumbled and fell opposite Brechin hall library. Mr. Goodwin was thrown to the ground and his left arm broken at the elbow.

The injured man was taken home by friends who were passing and made as comfortable as possible during the night. Sunday morning, Goodwin was removed to the Lawrence General hospital where the injury was treated.

Which is worse, imprisonment for life or a life-long disease, like scrofula, for example? The former, certainly, would be preferable were it not that Ayer's Sarsaparilla can always come to the rescue and give the poor sufferer health, strength, and happiness.

Wedding.

COMEAU-HOGAN.

Miss Lizzie Hogan of Lawrence and Arthur ComEAU of this town were united in marriage at St. Mary's chapel, Lawrence, Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. Flemming in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends of the contracting parties. The bride was charmingly attired in white mulle and she carried a bouquet of bride's roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Ellen Hogan. Mr. Denamont was best man.

In the evening a reception was tendered the young couple at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. David Dunlap, 67 Oak Street, Lawrence. Refreshments were served and several selections were rendered by the Albion trio of this town, Gus Johnson, John J. Bradley, Andrew Doherty, John J. Dymond and John Quinn.

Mr. and Mrs. ComEAU were the recipients of many useful and valuable wedding presents. They took the 9.40 p.m. train from the north station for Boston and journeyed thence to New York where they will enjoy their honeymoon. Friends from Boston, Malden and Andover were present at the ceremony. The young couple will be at home after Oct. 1, in Andover.

MISS WETHERBEE DEAD.

One of the City's Most Prominent Women Passed Away Saturday.

At quarter past nine Saturday night Miss Emily Greene Wetherbee ceased to exist save in the memories of her legion of friends. The spark of bodily life, which had been burning but dimly for many weeks, was unable to survive even a most successful operation, and though she revived for a time the end was soon foreseen. She was unquestionably the foremost woman of Lawrence in point of public life and service, while in heart, character, and talents none were her superiors and none more beloved. If one person in the city today speaks in heartfelt sorrow of her death hundreds do, for Miss Wetherbee's great popularity was due to her personal contact with those hundreds as their teacher. In the school room her presence was as sunny and lovable as her teaching was thorough and effective. If she was loved in life she is venerated in death, for now is clearly seen what her loss means. If ever a life was given to the upbuilding and welfare of Lawrence that life was hers; if ever the example of a beautiful life bore rich fruit among the people of this city that life was hers. She lived and died in and for the city and by its whole citizen body her death is mourned.

Emily Greene Wetherbee was born in Milford, N. H., January 6, 1839, the youngest of eight children. Her parents were Isaac and Sophia Wetherbee and in her early childhood they moved to Boston. From Boston they went to Charlestown and later Somerville, and in 1849 or 1850 they made Lawrence their place of residence.

On her mother's side one ancestor was General Nathaniel Greene of revolutionary fame while on her father's side one of her forefathers also fought for American independence. Her paternal grandfather was in the battle of Bunker Hill. She is survived by two brothers, George Wetherbee of this city, who is in the employ of the Boston & Maine railroad, and Isaac, who lives in the west. She also leaves one niece, Mrs. Sarah A. Metcalf, and two nephews, James Bailey and Warren Hackett, all of this city, the children of her sister, Mrs. Anne Hackett.

At the age of sixteen Miss Wetherbee graduated from the local high school and soon began active work in teaching. Her first position was in the old Oak street primary school, now the training school, and later she taught in South Lawrence. In 1863 she left Lawrence and took up educational work in Boston, teaching in the Bowdoin school. She remained in Boston until 1870 when she returned to this city and has since been continuously connected with the high school.

She was at the head of the English and rhetorical department and as such she was brought into contact with every pupil of the high school for many years. Hundreds of her old pupils have grown up to manhood and womanhood and, all without exception, have looked upon her with respect as a teacher and veneration as a woman of extraordinary sweetness of disposition. Probably there are few instructors between whom and their pupils the bond of friendship has been so strong.

In connection with her work in English literature as a teacher it may be said that Miss Wetherbee was a woman of rare qualifications. Her taste and judgment were of the best and if any tribute to her abilities in this line other than the praise of her pupils were needed it could be found in her own compositions.

As a writer her reputation was by no means confined to local circles though much that was best in her literary work had a local flavor. Members of the Woman's club will recall with pleasure her many bright poems and general articles, the frequent products of a generous heart, a fertile and well trained brain. She was president of the Woman's club at the time of her death and one of its founders in 1891.

But the citizens of Lawrence in general rather than the members of any one organization are the ones in whose hearts her reputation rests most secure in literary as well as other lines. "Our Schoolroom," "The Old Elm," "The Lights of Lawrence," "The Old School Bell," and "The Bells of Lawrence," are only a few of her compositions that have touched a responsive chord in many hearts. Her semi-centennial poem was the subject of much admiring comment.

Her talents have aided many local charities, one in particular being the general hospital. As a humorist, also, she had much capability, her "Maria Greene" papers attracting considerable attention. For some time she corresponded for the Boston Journal, and the Transcript and Globe have also used much of her writings, as well as all of the local papers.

And not alone as a writer but also as a reader and orator did Miss Wetherbee find favor. She delighted large audiences in Lawrence and elsewhere with her readings while as an orator her address before Needham post, G. A. R. in 1893 and the veterans of Southboro the following year are still fresh in the public memory. Her lectures on literary and educational topics were in keeping with her mental attainments.

For many years she was president of the old resident's association and a prominent member of the high school alumni association. She was a member of the Needham woman's relief corps 55.

Granted a Franchise.

Peabody, Aug. 31.—At a special meeting of the selectmen a franchise was granted the Salem and Wakefield R. R. to run tracks through Lynfield street without regard to transfers, fares or frequency of trips. Work will be started at once, as some of the material has already arrived.

Runaway in South Lawrence.

One of the worst smashups which ever happened in Lawrence took place on South Broadway about noon Tuesday.

A pair of horses belonging to F. W. Richardson of Haverhill, attached to a wagon loaded with furniture standing on Crosby street, became frightened and dashed down the street to Broadway. There they turned south on the street and as the wagon wheels struck the street car track, one got caught and was broken at the hub.

With a crowd the wagon was overturned and the load of furniture precipitated into the street. The forward truck was fired and the horses were hurled against a light wagon belonging to C. and E. Lacaille, standing at the curb in front of John Daly's store. One horse was thrown bodily into the buggy and the other landed against the horse attached to the buggy. The carriage was smashed into kindling wood and an iron post on the curbing was bent flat on the sidewalk. Lacaille's horse was knocked clear of the shafts and he started to run, but was hindered by a weight attached to the bridle. At the corner of Salem street the animal tripped and fell, where he was caught by a bystander and taken to David Blair's stable.

Meanwhile Mr. Richardson's horses were struggling to get free from the buggy into which they had crashed. It was with much difficulty that they were released and taken to Blair's stables. It is miraculous that none of the three horses were injured beyond a few bruises and cuts.

No one could tell just what frightened Richardson's horses, but a reporter learned that a party of boys were carrying a ladder across Crosby street about the time of the accident and it is supposed that they let it fall and thus scared the horses.

The furniture belonged to Daniel Lawrence of 10 Crosby street. He was having his household goods moved to Haverhill. His property is badly damaged. The greatest loss will be the injury to an organ which was in the wagon. Chairs were smashed and it is feared that investigation will reveal that much of the furniture is ruined.

Lacaille's team had been hired by Henry Goodwin of Chase & Sanborn's Tea company of Boston, and was left standing while he was transacting some business. There was no one on the furniture wagon when the horses started. The horses were eating their dinner.

An attachment was subsequently placed on Mr. Richardson's turnout to recover for damages to Messrs. Lacaille's buggy.

Hale Appointed.

The county commissioners met at the court house in this city Tuesday forenoon and appointed Willard J. Hale of Newburyport register of deeds for the Southern Essex district, to fill the unexpired term of Charles S. Osgood, deceased of Salem.

The selection was made after considerable deliberation on the part of the commissioners who realized the importance of the appointment and the difficulty of choosing a man who would give the most satisfaction to all concerned. They made the appointment with a view to securing a man who would be competent to take charge of the office not only for the remainder of the year, but also for the next term should he be elected in the fall.

Mr. Hale is a dry goods dealer in Newburyport and has been quite prominent in politics in that city. He is about 45 years old. Last year he was chairman of the republican city committee. Under Harrison's administration he served as postmaster of Newburyport. Last year he was a delegate to the national republican convention at St. Louis.

The appointment will be a surprise to those in the lower end of the county, where it was generally expected that Andrew Nichols of Danvers, who in his profession as a civil engineer has been familiar with the registry office for 40 years, would be the choice of the commissioners to fill the vacancy.

It is said in Salem that T. F. Hunt is likely to get the nomination for register this fall, if he will accept it and the claim is that the commissioners would not consider him for the temporary appointment made today, because his candidacy for the nomination had been announced and it was against their wishes to appoint a man who was a candidate.

Atlantic Mills Started.

The Atlantic mills started up Monday morning after four weeks' shutdown and employment was thus given to over thirteen hundred people.

All departments of the mill are in operation and the employees are all working on full time. There has been no change in the scale of wages at the mill. Agent Sherman told a reporter this morning that the mill authorities were of a hopeful temperament. Mr. Sherman said he could not state whether the mill has many orders ahead or not, since the goods are not sold directly from the mills but through a selling house.

The Everett mills resume operations in a week and everything indicates a most prosperous winter in local industrial circles.

Death Was Sudden.

John Taylor of 29 Whitman street died suddenly Monday morning. Medical Examiner Howe was summoned and he pronounced that death was caused by heart disease.

Mr. Taylor was in his usual health Sunday and walked out in the afternoon with two of his daughters. He went to his bed in apparently good health. Soon after 2 o'clock Mrs. Taylor was awakened by her husband who seemed to be choking. A physician was summoned but Mr. Taylor was dead before he arrived.

Deceased was born in Yorkshire, England, fifty-four years ago. He came to this country in 1881 and settled in Lawrence. He was a warp dresser by trade and worked for some years in the Pacific mills. Of late years he had worked in the Arlington mill. He leaves a wife, three daughters and one son. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

PIANOS

Few people have the courage to buy a cheap piano after carefully examining a really fine one. A pretty casing is often designed to sell a poor musical instrument. These well known makes combine beauty outside and worth within. Among the first-class ones these three are the most popular—not low priced and inferior, but cheap for their superior quality. These pianos can be purchased from $300 to $400, according to size and case—quality just the same. We will rent you one of these famous instruments for three months delivered right in your home for $15. Medium grade pianos for $12. Cheap pianos for $10. If you decide the piano is all we claim for it and decide to purchase, the rent will be allowed as payment on your instrument.

New Register of Deeds.

Newburyport, Sept. 1.—Willard J. Hale, who was appointed register of deeds for the southern Essex district by the county commissioners at Lawrence yesterday, is probably one of the best known men in Newburyport. He was born here in 1854 and since he was 18 years old he has been the maker of his own fortune. At that age he went to work in a dry goods store in this city. He has been identified with the trade ever since. When he was 17 he went to Boston and entered the employ of C. F. Hovey & Co., remaining two years. Then he came back to Newburyport and started in business for himself at the stand where he may still be found, 27 State street.

Mr. Hale has for years taken a most active interest in politics, being chairman of the republican city committee for a number of years, a position which he at present holds. His public service has consisted of five years in the common council, three as its president. Besides this he has represented the district in the legislature, and was postmaster during President Harrison's term. He was also a delegate to the last national convention and was on the committee to notify Vice-President Hobart of his nomination.

Mr. Hale is also president of the board of trade and has always taken an active interest in the welfare of the board and the success of its projects.

The Arrest Was a Surprise.

Marblehead, Aug. 31.—The arrest of Daniel C. Brown, jr., assistant postmaster at Marblehead, by Postoffice Inspectors White and Snow, charged with stealing letters containing money, created great surprise in and about Marblehead, where he is well known. It was hard for the people to realize that he could be guilty of the crime, but his confession leaves no room for doubt. He was always considered one of the best young men of Marblehead, but his friends are powerless to render any assistance. Yesterday many cases of loss of money through the postoffice were reported in the town, as well as at Marblehead Neck. Brown's wife is heartbroken over the affair, and his mother is completely prostrated. They have the sympathy of the public.

He was arraigned before United States Commissioner Fiske yesterday morning on the charge of the embezzlement of a letter containing an article of value from the United States mail on Aug. 28. Thomas W. Proctor appeared for the defendant, and Assistant District Attorney Casey for the government. The case was continued until Sept. 11 at 10 a. m. Brown is 32 years old and entered the postal service at the age of 17.

Romantic Marriage.

Georgetown, Aug. 30.—A romantic marriage took place here yesterday. The marriage was the sequel of an unsuccessful attempt at suicide by the bridegroom, caused by the bride's refusal to marry him. For the past year Amos W. Bennett, a young barber, has been courting Miss Fannie Harvey, a pretty girl, 18 years old. Young Bennett was desperately in love with Miss Harvey and had often proposed that they get married, but she did not think it right to leave her widowed mother alone. Driven to despair, by his love for the girl, Bennett told her he could no longer live without her and that if she did not marry him he would commit suicide. Last Thursday Bennett went to a shed adjoining the home of his sweetheart, procured a rope and hanged himself to a beam. The girl saw him, ran into the house, procured a knife and cut the rope just in time to save him. On his recovery the girl received her mother's consent and the couple were married.

Attacked by Highwaymen.

Salem, Aug. 30.—Frank S. Gifford of this city, while returning to his summer residence in North Beverly, was the participant in a little brush with highwaymen, one evening last week. He was alone in an open buggy, and had just got beyond what is known as the "four corners," in Danversport, when two men sprang out of the bushes, one of them grabbing the horse's bridle, the other ordering Gifford to get out of the team. He refused, saying that he would make it hot for them both. One of them climbed upon the step of the buggy with the evident intent of getting in. Gifford pulled a revolver out of his pocket and told them to "get." They laughed at him, and remarked that it was only a toy pistol, when he told them that if they didn't clear out, he would fire. Then, as they paid no attention to that, he fired at the ground accidentally hitting the fellow on the step in the foot. The one at the horse's head "dusted" into the woods, the other following on one foot, both muttering curses on the way.

An Heroic Act.

Ipswich, Aug. 31.—Charles Fells, a young man of the town, whose years do not as yet exceed 17, made a brave and gallant rescue Saturday by saving a seven year old child of Willis Augur, from drowning. As he chanced to be walking by way of Choate's wharf he saw a little girl tumble into the water. He immediately jumped after her and quickly brought her to the surface and before the child had been strangled even in the slightest by the water. The water in the river was at the time over ten feet deep.

Broke His Collar Bone.

Ipswich, Aug. 31.—Charles Colson, who was injured on the car ride, Wednesday night, has had an examination by Drs. Swan and Manchester. The injuries were found to be a dislocated collar bone, and the shoulder blade was drawn up and slightly fractured. They made him as comfortable as was possible, and he is doing as well as can be expected.

Eyesight May Be Destroyed.

Lynn, Aug. 30.—Patrick J. Dolan, an inspector of the Lynn Gas and Electric company was walking up Franklin street about 10 o'clock last night, and when near the French church noticed a strong odor of gas. He initiated an investigation and at last reached a spot in the middle of the street where the odor seemed to be strongest. Then he lighted a match to locate the cause of the leak. As he did so the people in the neighborhood heard a loud explosion, and in a few minutes more Dolan was on his way to the Lynn hospital. He was terribly burned about the face, and it is feared the sight of one of his eyes may be destroyed. Both his hands were burned badly also. His injuries were attended to by Dr. Bartlett, and at midnight he was resting easily.

Dynamite Explosion.

Salem, Aug. 30.—A blinding flash of light, followed by two loud explosions, one directly after the other, caused considerable fright and much speculation among the residents of Woburn, Hamilton and Asbury Grove Saturday night. Next morning when John H. Butman who controls the boating privilege at Idlewood lake, reached his house, he found his floating wharf and three boats had been blown to pieces with dynamite. Mr. Butman says he doesn't know who could have perpetrated the deed, but as a building belonging to him was burned a few weeks ago under suspicious circumstances, it is evident he has an enemy somewhere. The Hamilton police think they have a clue and will call upon the state police for assistance in investigating the matter.

A Boy's Bad Fall.

Marblehead, Sept. 1.—Thomas D. Giles, the four-year-old son of Capt. Thomas Giles, met with an accident at Tucker wharf yesterday afternoon. The little fellow was going down the run to get to the float. He tripped and fell about fifteen feet into the water, it being low tide. His cries were heard, and Thomas Tucker and Special Officer James Frost ran to his assistance. Mr. Frost succeeded in getting him. The boy had a cut on his chin which bled freely. Otherwise he was not hurt.

New High School Teacher.

Salem, Aug. 30.—George W. Earle has been selected by the high school committee for teacher of science in the high school. His name will be presented to the school board for election, and he will undoubtedly be accepted. He was selected from 23 applicants who were examined by the committee Saturday. Mr. Earle has been for some years principal of the Hitchcock free school at Brimfield, near Springfield. He is about 35 years of age and is married.

The First Cotton Mill.

North Beverly, Aug. 31.—Last week a stone marking the site of the first cotton mill in America, was unveiled with appropriate exercises. The stone is the gift of C. F. Smith to the Beverly Historical society. It is of slate and has upon it the following inscription: "B. H. S. Here the first cotton mill in America was built, 1787; incorporated Feb. 3, 1789; visited by Washington Oct. 30, 1789; burnt 1828. Charles Frederick Smith, donor."

Damaged by Water.

Peabody, Sept. 1.—An open faucet in the upper story of the Blaney block, Main street, flooded the rear end of the building last night and caused considerable damage to stock in George H. Jacob's clothing store on the first floor by trickling down through the two floors. A large number of straw hats were ruined and a quantity of clothing was wet by the dripping water. As usual, no one could be found who would acknowledge responsibility for the overflow, or who knew any thing about it.

Beware Of Mercury!

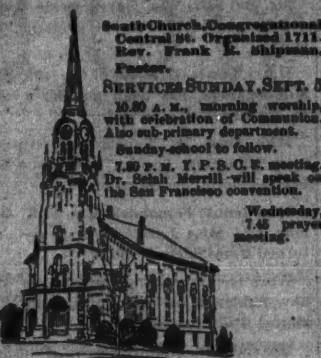

Mr. Henry Roth, of 1848 South 9th Street, St. Louis, was given the usual mercurial treatment for contagious blood poison. He was twice pronounced cured, but the disease returned each time, he was seized with rheumatic pains, and red lumps and sores covered his body. "I was in a horrible fix," he says, "and the more treatment I received, the worse I seemed to get. A New York specialist said he could cure me, but his treatment did me no good whatever. I was stiff and full of pains, my left arm was useless so that I was unable to do even the lightest work. This was my condition when I began to take S. S. S., and a few bottles convinced me that I was being benefited. I continued the medicine, and one dozen bottles cured me sound and well. My system was under the effects of mercury, and I would soon have been a complete wreck but for S. S. S."

S. S. S. (guaranteed purely vegetable) is the only cure for real blood diseases. The mercurial treatment of the doctors always does more harm than good. Beware of mercury! Books on the disease and its treatment mailed free to any address by Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.

The popular 8 Bells at the Opera House Saturday and Monday nights, with special matinee Monday afternoon, will doubtless attract many patrons from town.

The annual meeting of Wauwinet lodge association occurred Monday evening, and the following officers were chosen: Pres., Geo. L. Barker; vice-pres., John B. Lewis; secretary, J. W. Litch; treasurer, George Perkins; trustees, Thomas F. Wentworth, Geo. Rextrow, William Somerville.

Michael Burke will be heard in court Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. So far so good, but with the exercise of a little more vigilance on the part of the police would it not be possible for Michael to have company before the bar of justice? More gentel in appearance perhaps but in business not less offensive.

Saturday morning about 9:30, 12 out of 17 of the graduating class of '07 left in a hay rack for Lake Cochichewick; it was a basket picnic. The day was spent in fishing and boat riding and various other ways. Those present report having had a very nice time. Return was made at 8 p. m.

Mrs. Alfred Howes of Pleasant Street was knocked down and run over by a horse owned by the Emerson Mfg. Co., Lawrence, Wednesday afternoon, the accident occurring near the corner of Hampshire and Concord Streets in Lawrence. Mrs. Howes was taken into Maggon's market and soon after was able to leave for home. One rib was broken and she was also painfully bruised.

Another petty burglary took place in the old postoffice building at North Andover sometime during last night. The thieves entered by forcing a window open. The building was ransacked and a quantity of candy left in a show case belonging to Postmaster C. A. Pilling, was taken. No clue to the thieves has been discovered. This was rather a bold break considering that watchman Crowley of the Boston & Maine railroad was so close at hand.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Berry offered a pleasant meeting place for the Neighborhood club of North Andover, Wednesday. "Vacation Saunterings" were reviewed by papers from Miss H. F. Carleton and Miss D. M. Farnum; the subject of the former was "From the Mountain-valley," the latter, "A Fish Story." Miss Ida Farnum read a poem and Miss Laura Farnum rendered a musical selection. The Neighborhood club will hold its next meeting at the home of Miss Mary Towne, Sept. 15th.

Mr. William Gardner Ayers a Happy Benedict.

Wednesday a beautiful September day, lent its charm on the occasion of a joyous wedding at the home of Mrs. Peter Dick in North Andover at 3 o'clock. The principals were William Gardner Ayers, son of Rufus L. and Abbie J. Ayers of Georgetown, Que., and Miss Agnes Amelia Dick of town.

Rev. B. J. Johnston of the First Methodist church performed the ceremony using the Episcopal service. The groomsmen was a brother, James H. Ayers of New York, and the bridesmaid was Miss Mary Dick, the elder sister of the bride. The gown of the bride was of white Swiss muslin, with a garniture of Valenciennes lace and white taffeta ribbons, a decidedly pretty creation. She carried white asters and also wore a blossom in her hair. The bridesmaid was similarly attired and carried a bouquet of pink asters. The interior of the home was very prettily decorated with goldenrod and asters, arranged by loving hands, a large bank of these blossoms almost concealing the mantel.

Directly after the ceremony from 3:30 until 6 o'clock a reception was held and Mr. and Mrs. Ayers received the congratulations and well wishes of friends. A wedding dinner was served after which Mr. and Mrs. Ayers left for a brief wedding trip to Newport, Vt., Lake Mem. phremagog and contiguous places. They will be at home to friends after Sept. 20, in their new home on Sutton Street. Many elegant, costly and useful presents were conferred upon the bride.

Glennie's Hearing.

A hearing was given by the selectmen in their office Friday evening on petition of John Glennie for permission to prepare from beef suet, certain food products used as an ingredient in the manufacture of compound lard. After the petition had been read by the clerk, Chairman Currier called on Mr. Glennie who stated that the nearest manufactory of a like kind was on Fulton Street, Boston, and that there were no objectionable features connected with it. C. A. DeCourcy, Esq., appeared for Mr. Darnon, F. E. Clarke for park commissioners of Lawrence, and John R. Poor on behalf of the Essex company, as remonstrants. Mr. Muller and other residents of the neighborhood spoke in opposition basing their objections on the past and present state of affairs. The chairman stated that the present condition of things had been declared a nuisance by the board, and would be abated, and requested that remarks be confined to the petition. Mr. Shearer hoped that the selectmen would grant the petition, provided that it was a legitimate business. Mr. Manchester was a remonstrant, but perhaps his zeal exceeded his discretion when he stated that Mr. Glennie had more than once petitioned for, and the selectmen had granted an extension of time. Decision was reserved.
